Welcome to the 2013 Inaugural Conference of APCDA!

Together, we are opening doors and spreading new ideas and perspectives on global career development throughout Asia. APCDA’s hope is that this inaugural conference, and the conferences that follow, will provide an international forum for the sharing of experience, the learning of lessons from the past, and the emergence of ideas and dreams for the next century.

We are ready to embark on this adventure. Join us and your international peers and colleagues on a journey that seeks to transform our collective ideas and dreams into a new reality for clients and the world!

Soonhoon Lee Ahn
President
Asia Pacific Career Development Association

We all Career Consultant Forum members of Korea heartily welcome your visit to Korea!

Let’s share success stories and achievements, enjoy networking, and learn knowledge and experience in this meaningful inauguration conference which will become a valuable asset to you.

Known as ‘Land of the Morning Calm’, Korea is a very dynamic country. We hope you will feel the scent, taste, and charm of Korea with your precious memory of APCDA conference.

We look forward to meeting you soon!

Eunmee Hwang
President
Career Consultant Forum
About APCDA

Mission Statement: The Mission of APCDA is to provide an international forum for sharing career development ideas and experience in the Asia Pacific region with global perspectives.

Objectives: APCDA provides training to professionals engaged in facilitating the career development of others in the Asia Pacific region. It may:

- Organize conferences, workshops, and professional training events to facilitate learning by career development professionals
- Organize networking events so that career development professionals can develop relationships to better share ideas and professional projects
- Publish educational articles describing the work of various practitioners in the Asia Pacific region so that others may learn from these practices
- Identify exemplary practices in the Asia Pacific region to facilitate development of services in the area
- Encourage the development of theories that adequately describe Asian career development

History

In December, 2009, Soonhoon Ahn visited Dr. Yao-Ting Sung, and Dr. Shelley Tien at the National Taiwan Normal University. They discussed the concept of creating an Asian-Pacific Career Development Association and agreed that such an organization would fill an important need. At the 2010 NCDA Conference, 24 NCDA members met to form this association, including Cheri Butler who was then President of NCDA.

At NCDA in San Antonio in 2011, another organizational meeting was held with 15 people attended. They selected the name Asia Pacific Career Development Association and a 2-tier organization that has organizational members and individual members.

At NCDA in Atlanta in 2012, the bylaws were adopted and the following officers and committee chairs were elected:

- Soonhoon Ahn, President
- Satomi Chudasama, Treasurer and Membership Chair
- Marilyn Maze, Secretary and Webmaster
- Richard Knowdell, Professional Development Chair

Since the July, 2012, APCDA has worked on making this inaugural conference in Seoul a reality.
Congratulatory Message from Bang Hanam, Minister of the Employment and Labor, Korea

I extend my heartiest congratulations for the opening of the 2013 Asia Career Development Association International Conference in Korea.

I also appreciate efforts of all the members of Asia Career Development Association and Career Consultant Forum for co-sponsoring this event.

Career consulting helps individuals finding the value and happiness of working and based on this, getting a job that one wants. This contributes to the competitiveness reinforcement of an individual, a corporation, furthermore, of a country.

I hope this conference provides an opportunity for expanding basis of professionals and strengthening global competitiveness by internationally sharing know-how on career development theories and consultation.

Also, I hope this conference offers many political proposals and cooperation for the development and performance progress of career development and employment supporting program implemented by the Korean government.

Through the cooperation between Career Consultant Forum and Asia Career Development Association in the future, I strongly believe that it will play an important role in leading the career development support of job seekers in Korea and the global stream of career development theory.

Thank you.

Bang Hanam
Minister of the Employment and Labor, Korea
I warmly congratulate the opening of the 2013 Asia Pacific Career Development Association (APCDA) Annual Conference. I also show my gratitude to APCDA, Hwang Eunmee, President of Career Consultant Forum (CCF) and concerned persons who have put enormous preparation into this conference.

Today, the meaning of “job” has changed completely from before. Already, many countries have evolved into a knowledge and information society and the labor market is becoming flexible. Rather than a “job for life” like before, it is turning into an occupational society where the emphasis is on an individual's ability and professionalism.

Unemployment rate in Korea reached 7.5% last year and youth unemployment rate of OECD countries is close to 16.2%. Unemployment of youth is world’s common problem now. The time has come for people to be creative and understand their talents and pursue their interests rather than searching for a job passively in a given environment.

Mark Twain once said “make your job a hobby.” We need to have an attitude of enjoying as one works. Perhaps this is the reason that Richard Bolles, today’s keynote speaker, mentioned in his book, What Color is Your Parachute?, to focus on the abilities and advantages that one can show to the world.

The 21st century is so called 3C society; Change, Challenge, and Customer Satisfaction. I wish to share with you what one needs to have that is suitable for a 3C society. When I was working as CEO of Ministry of Employment and Labor in Daegu region, I championed the “HAVA!” movement to have our employees’ open their minds and act differently. It created a big sensation.

HAVA activity means first, Humor (work with a smile), second, Attitude (Make quality life with politeness and good manner), third, Vision (Grow organization and myself with positive goal and hope), and fourth, Action (Know oneself for existence, set a mission and act on it). Even now in my National Assembly hall and regional office, I have installed a banner to share this spirit with employees. This is my own parachute that lead me to be here now.

We cannot change our past. However, we can create our own future by what I do now. Our job, career, and experiences together are a process of making our future. I give a big applause to you all, for your challenges and dream of your tomorrow.

Thank you.

9:40 Action Research – Bringing Career Guidance to Vietnam Secondary Schools – A Story of Hope by Phoenix Ho; Chau Nguyen

Hanoi, Vietnam

High School Students

The presenters will share their experience of strategically working with two northern provinces’ Department of Education leaders/educators in Vietnam to bring career guidance education to the provincial secondary schools, where career guidance rarely exists before.

Phoenix Ho works as the Career Counsellor for RMIT University Vietnam, Saigon South Campus. Her passion is to enable students to discover their vocational calling and follow their dreams. She is building the foundation for her Ph.D. research questions, ‘What is the impact of parents on Vietnamese youths’ career decisions and how does this influence their career satisfaction and personal life happiness? Phoenix has an undergraduate degree in Business Administration from San Jose State University, first Master Degree in Education Leadership and Management from RMIT University, and second Master Degree in Counselling, Career Development from Santa Clara University.

Chau Nguyen works as the Coordinator of the Career Guidance Program for the Flemish Association for Development Cooperation and Technical Assistance (VVOB). The program aims to support the improvement of career guidance competencies for the two Northern provinces in Vietnam, Quang Nam and Nghe An. Chau has had more than 17 years of experience in the development sector of non-profit organizations where she discovered her passion to work with people. She has worked in the field of career guidance for one and half years, building the capacity of others and developing career guidance competencies in secondary education.

11:20  Helping Educators Bridge the Skills Gap: Global Issue / Local Approaches by Suraj Raghavan

The "skills gap" between what educators provide what employers need is a global problem. Despite the obvious differences between advanced and emerging economies, educators and policy makers in both types of markets face the same challenges. In this presentation, representatives from ACT, Inc. will explore international aspects of the skills gap, and provide brief case studies of how educators in countries as diverse as the USA, Saudi Arabia, and Honduras are using the ACT WorkKeys / International Career Readiness Certificate program to align education and employment needs.

Suraj Raghavan is Senior Consultant, International Client Outreach & Partnerships, for International Programs at ACT, Inc., a nonprofit organization based in Iowa City, Iowa that helps people achieve education and workplace success across the United States and around the world. ACT’s international portfolio includes programs traditionally delivered within the United States, as well as assessments and instructional programs specifically designed for individuals and organizations overseas. ACT has international offices in Asia, Australia and Europe, and its products and services are available in more than 100 countries worldwide.

13:00 Training of Career Professionals in Singapore by Sing Chee Wong

Career guidance, planning, development and counselling are relatively new techniques in Singapore. As there is a lack of indigenous materials for training and use by career professionals, it is necessary to adapt and improvise techniques and tools to ensure that they would be relevant for use in Singapore's context.

Sing Chee Wong established and managed career centres in two premier institutions of higher learning in Singapore - the Singapore Polytechnic and the National University of Singapore. She developed a career counselling tool “Singapore Occupational Card Sort” to help job seekers achieve better understanding of their career needs and interests, and articulate them. She is a Global Career Development Facilitator Instructor and has conducted seven CDF courses for 105 participants in Singapore since 2010. She has organised and conducted numerous training courses and workshops on personal and career development, as well as on the administration of the “Singapore Occupational Card Sort”, and received good feedback.

13:40 Progress of GCDF Program in Korea by Woontae Kim, Jong Won Lee, and Geun Soon Hwang

Career practitioners in various fields have been rapidly increased since the beginning of 21C. In this progress, quality of career service has become the most important issue. The GCDF-Korea program has a unique position which influences government policies and other career development practitioner training programs in Korea. Vision and management strategies for the GCDF-Korea program are shown in this presentation.

Woontae Kim is CEO & President of Career Building System & Consulting Co. Ltd. and a professor at Shinheung College and Graduate School of Kwangwoon University. Dr. Kim earned a Ph.D. from Konkuk University (Seoul, Korea). He is also a Global Career Development Facilitator and CDF Instructor.

Now he is a president of Korean Coaching Psychological Association and honorary vice president of the International Society for Coaching Psychology. He has developed many psychological tests especially in a career-related area such as aptitude tests, work value test, and other things. His major research interests have been career development, leadership, job stress, and coaching.

13:40 Job Satisfaction Surveys Feedback to Whom? Designing MulFIS System for Employee by Theory of Work Adjustment by Chun-Hung Lin, Chia-Wei Shiu, Yu-Fen Lo, Sy-Feng Wang, and Chao-Ming Liu

Based on the Work Adjustment Theory, the present study designed MulFIS, a Multi-Level Feedback Information System, for employees to compare their satisfaction with their work value. Results indicate that the satisfaction-importance diagram can be seen as an effective information feedback design on the individual level, either for individual work balance or for career congruence.

Chun-Hung Lin received his Ph.D. degree in Industrial and Organizational Psychology in Fu-Jen Catholic University. He is a consultant serving the employment counseling center in New Taipei City (Taiwan). He is currently a Career Development Facilitator Instructor (CDFI). His research interests are particularly in job seeking behavior and work adjustment.

Chia-Wei Shiu is a Ph.D. student from Fu-Jen Catholic University (Taiwan), majoring in Organizational Psychology, including Organizational Development and Employee Assistance Programs (EAPs). He's doing a project on work adjustment.

14:20 Afternoon Break 1
This presentation will introduce diverse international organizations around the World and job opportunities in those organizations. Each international organization needs and deploys staff who have expertise in various areas outside of the core business. I will talk about my job experiences while wearing two hats as an IT professional and Social/Protocol Officer at IMF, having had a successful career as a non-economist in an economist dominant institution and encourage all those who aspire to work in the international organizations to pursue employment regardless of the core mission of each international organization.

Ms. Sue-Kyong Shin, recently retired, was Senior Information Technology Officer (Team Leader) and Joint Secretariat Social Officer (Protocol) of the International Monetary Fund (IMF). As a Team Leader, she was responsible for managing a group of system analysts in providing and supporting financial and administrative software application developments such as the IMF’s financial operations with 187 member countries, Annual Meetings, Conferences and Event Management, as well as the Facilities and Real Estate Management computer systems. As the head of the Social Office, she was responsible for coordinating and implementing various activities in support of major Annual Meetings and official social events such as receptions/luncheons/dinners/cultural programs/sightseeing tours, including events hosted by heads of state (Presidents/Kings) for the World Bank and IMF member countries.

Multinational companies, which are ferociously in competition for top talents, have undergone the building of a leadership pipeline. Businesses intent to ensure that they have the right talents to grow now and in the future, and strategically retain their top talents, by meeting the employees’ career needs. Multinational companies have developed similar and yet dissimilar career development programs and culture. Continuous effort is put into matching corporate and individual needs to stay competitive internally and externally. Key challenges and lessons learned from the most successful programs will be described.

Hai Kyong Kim has worked in human resources for Procter & Gamble, Volvo Construction Equipment, McDonald’s, and GE Healthcare. She has worked in many aspects of human resources, including Talent Development where employees’ career is an important subject matter. She was awarded the Asia Pacific President’s Award for HR Excellence for Business Growth and selected to its Human Resources Leadership Program. She is a strong advocate for women and served on the steering committee of the Asia Pacific, Middle East and Africa’s Women Leadership Network.
Development and Validation of the Work-Family Enrichment Scale for Dual-Career Adults in Taiwan by Yu-Chen Wang and Yen-Ting Chen

14:40  Helping University Students Leverage Study Abroad Experiences for Career Development Opportunities and Beyond by Angella Griffin and Leslie Stevenson  Richmond, VA, US  College Students

University students are increasingly incorporating study abroad experiences into their college programs. In a global economy it is critical that students are able to articulate how these experiences directly benefit employers. This interactive session will present career planning strategies and resources to assist career development professionals working with students.

Angella Griffin is Director of Graduate Student Career Development at the Elliott School of International Affairs at The George Washington University where she oversees the career management and development programs for 800 graduate students and over 5,000 graduate alumni. Prior to joining the Elliott School, Angella coordinated experiential learning programs and was a career counselor for over ten years at George Mason University. She completed a Fulbright Fellowship to Germany for International Education Administrators and has served on the Board of Directors for the Eastern Association of Colleges & Employers (EACE), and was appointed to the National Association College & Employers (NACE) Global Initiatives Committee.
Leslie Stevenson is the Director of Career Development at the University of Richmond. In this capacity, she partners with many constituencies to assist students in reaching their career goals. Prior to this role, she held leadership roles in the career centers at the University of Baltimore and University of Virginia. Originally from the Eastern Shore of Virginia, Leslie graduated from UVA with a degree in English and Sociology. After working as a bank manager in the Washington, DC area, Leslie returned to school for her master’s in College Student Personnel at the University of Maryland.

16:00 What is the Biggest Problem Career Development Faces in My Country? by Soonhoon Ahn; Satomi Chudasama; Marilyn Maze; Dick Knowdell

Please consider this question and come prepared with an answer for your country. Each person is welcome to answer individually, or attendees from the same country may answer as a group. We will share our stories, then look at ways we face our challenges are similar and ways our challenges are unique.

Soonhoon Ahn, President of APCDA, has extensive experience in executive career coaching and counseling, including training for job search and career transition, international recruitment, and leadership development strategies. She had a long career with the World Bank and Asian Development Bank. She was recognized for her work in effective strategies for international recruitment and planning careers in international development. Her client organizations include: the US Department of State (FSI), Congressional Hunger Center (CHC), US Office of Personnel Management, US Department of Treasury, US Peace Corps, Montgomery County Housing Opportunities Commissions (HOC), Bethlehem Steel, Branch Banking and Trust (BB&T), and several universities.

Satomi Yaji Chudasama, native of Japan, is Treasurer and Membership Chair of APCDA. She is also Assistant Director - Liberal Arts & Engineering Career Counseling at Career Services at Princeton University (Princeton, NJ, USA). She has worked with college students (both undergrads and graduate students) and alumni at both public and private universities in the U.S.

Marilyn Maze, Ph.D., is the Secretary and Executive Director of the Asia Pacific Career Development Association. She is also a Principal Research Associate for ACT, Inc., and one of the developers of DISCOVER, a computerized career guidance program that includes extensive information about occupations, majors, schools, and other aspects of career planning. She received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Maryland Career Development Association in 2010 and is currently the Treasurer of the National Career Development Association.

18:00 Conference Adjourns
Thank You from APCDA

We would like to thank Eunmee Hwang, President of the Career Consultant Forum for accepting the challenge to make this conference happen and for her constant assistance in every detail of the conference. Other CCF members to whom we owe gratitude include Youngshin Imm, Shelley Kim, and Yeah Won Moon who worked hard to put this conference together.

We would like to express our sincere appreciation for the support given to APCDA by Mr. Samuel Koo, Chairperson of the Presidential Council on National Branding (2012-2013), Korea.

We would like to thank the associations that have joined APCDA as organizational members, lending their support to our success:
- Asia Career Development Association
- Career Consultant Forum
- Career Planning Network
- Indonesian School Counselors Association
- Monitor Associates, Inc.

We would also like to thank the National Career Development Association (NCDA) for encouraging our formation and NCDA President Rich Feller for preparing a video message for us. Past Present Cheri Butler helped us gain recognition during her presidential term and continues to provide strong support for APCDA, evidenced by her participation in this conference.

Barry Chung, a Past President of both NCDA and the American Counseling Association (ACA), has supported and remains committed to APCDA during our formative years.

Dick Knowdell has donated his wisdom, wealth, and connections to make APCDA successful, guiding us with his vast experience in international organizations.

We wish to thank LG Household & Health Care Ltd., LG Group, for the donation of skincare products which you received at registration (Beyond - Moisture Body Shower and Moisture Body Emulsion (lotion)).

The Hotel Prima generously donated the morning and afternoon coffee and snacks. Hotel Prima hopes you will consider their new location in the Namdaemoon Market area when you next visit Seoul.

Korea Economic Daily & Business Publications donated copies of Dick Bolles’ new Korean version of What Color is Your Parachute?
